

Overview

Corporations of all structures and sizes report that there is a learning curve associated with incorporating virtual collaboration practices into their overall communication strategies. In other words, having access to excellent technologies is only one part of the challenge for nonprofits.

We recognize that it is essential for organizations to become fluent and confident in the use of our virtual collaboration tools in order for their benefits to be fully realized. Therefore, in fulfillment of our mission, we include high-quality, instructor-led training with every membership level package.

Training Courses

Schedules and course registration details are provided with membership materials.
